A world where your old laptops spark opportunity, empower London’s communities, and lead the fight against climate change — all without costing public funds ?

SocialBox.Biz, a self-sustaining Community Interest Company (CIC), makes this vision reality with secure reuse before corporate IT recycling solutions UK. By prioritizing local reuse, we deliver unmatched #SocialImpact and #Scope3Emissions reduction…

In a world racing toward 82 million tonnes of e-rubbish by 2030 (UN report), businesses in London’s strong corporate community face a critical choice: recycle, export, or reuse old redundant IT equipment.

SocialBox.Biz, a self-sustaining Community Interest Company (CIC), offers secure reuse before corporate IT recycling solutions UK, prioritizing local reuse to deliver unmatched #Scope3Emissions reduction and #SocialImpact. Our approach saves 316 metric tons of CO_2 per 1,000 laptops — equivalent to 14,364 mature (Circular Computing).

Exporting old laptops abroad often increases transport emissions and risks improper disposal in countries with lax regulations, contributing to Scope 3 emissions — the indirect emissions from a company's value chain. With no UK smelters for computers, exporting is not only carbon-intensive but also misses local impact opportunities. SocialBox.Biz's model eliminates these issues by keeping donations in London, minimizing transport emissions and empowering vulnerable communities through partners like Age UK London and C4WS Homeless Project. We've reused over 1,000 laptops without public grants, ensuring efficiency and sustainability.

Our process is simple and secure: businesses schedule free bulk pickups, we provide NIST 800–88-compliant data wiping for GDPR compliance, and we refurbish devices with open-source software for accessibility. Donated laptops reach refugees, homeless individuals, and low-income families, fostering computer access inclusion and training. For example, a Westminster firm donated laptops, saving 15.8 tons of CO_2 and equipping disadvantaged homeless people via SocialBox.Biz social impact service job training as they move out of homeless shelters into permanent accommodation. Non-reusable devices are handled by WEEE-compliant partners, exceeding regulatory standards.

This local focus delivers a 75–85% emissions reduction compared to manufacturing new devices, far surpassing export models. "SocialBox.Biz's laptops transform lives," says a C4WS spokesperson in a previous case study, while Age UK notes reduced isolation for older adults. Our CompTIA+ training labs further empower formerly homeless individuals with skills, amplifying impact.

Unlike recycling-focused or export-heavy grant-funding-reliant focused tech access solutions, SocialBox.Biz's self-sustainable model conserves public resources, reinvesting into social programs like tech labs. For businesses, this means cost-effective secure laptop donation for businesses, further enhanced corporate impact reporting, and brand differentiation.
